GERMAN VAT LAW

The German VAT law, based on the EU VAT Directive, is recorded in the Value Added Tax Act of 1999 („Umsatzsteuergesetz“). This had been revised a number of times since that. German tax law is implemented by the Federal Parliament (Bundestag). However it is administered by the 16 federal states (Bundesländer).

GERMAN VAT REGISTRATION FOR FOREIGN COMPANIES

Foreign companies can register in Germany for VAT reporting without the need of forming a local company or branch - known as non-resident VAT trading. There is no VAT threshold in Germany for the registration of non-resident traders - a VAT ID number must be in place before the start of taxable deliveries or services. There are strict rules in which cases a German VAT registration is permitted.

Common scenarios which require a registration are:

- + Importing goods into Germany;
- + Organizing live events, conferences etc in Germany;
- + Passenger transport by a foreign company in Germany;
- + Holding goods in a warehouse in Germany as stock for resale;
- + Buying goods within Germany which are subsequently resold within Germany;
- + Distance selling over the threshold by Amazon dealers or using Amazon fulfillment services (FBA) in Germany

- + Selling goods from Germany to other EU member states; and
- + Distance selling to private individuals in Germany, e.g. internet retailing.

Registering for German VAT generally takes between two and six weeks, but this can vary. A tax payer must register at the specific tax office allocated to his country. For example: Tax payers from Italy at the tax office Munich II and from Spain at the tax office Kassel.
